

WE NOMINATE

Edward Dudley Hume Johnson, a Princetonian since 1939 and an able exponent of the tradition that outstanding teaching and scholarship are integrally related. This month, as the Atlantic Seaboard turned to the out-of-doors with the jerky transition from Standard to Eastern Daylight Saving Time, this 54-year old native of Alton, Ohio, a perceptive analyst of English literature in the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries, has won unusual critical acclaim for one of the more stimulating anthologies of the spring, a 423-page volume, with the unlikely and extremely formidable title, "The Poetry of Earth: A Collection of English Nature Writings."

Unlike most bulky collections of its kind, which slip from one peak to the next in making the most of literary names of the first rank, the Johnson anthology reflects the three decades — with time out for World War II and other responsibilities — its editor has devoted to the study of English literature. His selections from the great and the long-remembered are punctuated with materials he came upon while wandering through the diaries and the often unpublished writings of men whose observations of the world around them and reputations have long since been buried from view.

What may well be the final edition of the New York Herald-Tribune's "Book Week" waxed rhapsodical. Johnson, this critic wrote, has prepared a masterly introduction to his book — one which makes clear the historical significance of this neglected field of literature. He has, in addition, provided excellent critical prefaces before each of his selections . . . "Pre-eminent-ly it belongs on the shelves of naturalists, poets, and connoisseurs of the impromptu and unusual. The material has been chosen with an eye to each writer's personality, for his insight into living nature, and for that mystic touch, that groping after some transcendent ever-escaping reality which marks the true solitary, the seer."

Some 30 years ago, upon Johnson's graduation as a Phi Beta Kappa member of the Princeton Class of 1934, the editors of the senior annual noted that he "expects to continue his studies in the English language and literature at Oxford and will probably engage in newspaper correspondence work. They were right on the first count, for he had earned a Rhodes Scholarship, but erred on the second although Johnson had helped meet college expenses by reporting for metropolitan newspapers. The two years at Oxford were followed by his Ph.D. at Yale in 1939 and his appointment to the Princeton Department of English the same fall.

Johnson, who during four years of naval service rose to the rank of lieutenant commander, climbed steadily through faculty ranks and in 1950 was among the first young scholar-teachers singled out for Bicentennial Preceptorships, positions reserved for men of exceptional promise. The newly issued "Poetry of Earth" is in a sense related to his tenure as Philip Freneau Preceptor when he devoted his leave of absence to background-reading in the fields of philosophy, history, psychology, anthropology and science bearing upon his continuing research into the history of ideas.

For adding enjoyment to the season of the year that spins thoughts outward, or inward, toward nature; for his deep concern for the advancement of education, from his service as secondary school trustee to teaching on the post-doctoral level; he is our nominee as

BEHIND THE SCENES
At McCarter. What will happen to McCarter Theatre in the next few years?

Should the community of Princeton break forth on its own and acquire a theatre-auditorium?

How about forming a Princeton Art Council to act as kind of United Fund of the arts, raising money, distributing it to "member agencies" and fostering cohesion among artists and craftsmen?

These are some of the provocative questions raised and tossed into the air — but not caught and answered — at two small, informal meetings held this spring at McCarter.

The nearest thing to an answer is a "Coordinating Committee for the Performing Arts" to be organized formally and a chairman chosen on Tuesday, May 17, at 8 p.m.

Who's on Next? This Committee will meet on urgent, practical and immediate need-coordinating everything that goes on all the time every minute of every day, at McCarter Theatre. Its members will represent the University, the Princeton Branch of the Concert Series, the Princeton Ballet Society, Triangle Club, the Princeton Borough Elementary Schools PTA, Westminster Choir College, the Princeton Art Association, the Princeton Chamber Orchestra, several community organizations that use McCarter for benefits (see the Jewish Center's upcoming "Mad Revue," imported from New York) and, of course, McCarter itself.

Inconspicuously, it may seem at first, but quite coolly practical as one thinks about it, the intention to participate in this organizational meeting will come from Robert V. Dilley, executive director of the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, and keenly interested in "area development" beyond the narrow retail scope and in the formation, some day, of a Princeton Arts Council.

The initial, probing meeting was held on February 1. Last Wednesday, nine people gathered at McCarter, including Mrs. Robert Strunsky for the University Concerts Series, Mr. and Mrs. L. Wendell Eatey for the Princeton Ballet Society, Seymour Mandel, representing social service agencies using McCarter, Frank Strasburger, an undergraduate from Triangle Club, Mr. Dilley and, for McCarter, Arthur Lithgow, executive director, Nancy Shannon, general manager, and John McKenna, director of public relations.

University is Landlord. It was a casual, low-key meeting, held in the long corridor outside the McCarter balcony, but it had an air of portent.

"McCarter is a private institution," Mr. Lithgow reminded his audience. "The University is the owner and the landlord. The theatre has become municipal, almost by the University," she said, her "we" referring to the University Concerts Series.

The faculty's committee on McCarter chooses the regality plays, asks and beseeches the town for subscription support season after season — but chooses the plays.

Mr. Lithgow, who combines engagingly the theatrical sense of a first-rate producer and actor and the digital mind of a first-rate accountant, knows precisely what the University contributes (McCarter is worth $100,000 in the University's annual Budget) and how very specific the University is to be spent. "The amount is not enough to cover a disastrous season," he says dryly.

Mr. Lithgow spoke to Wednesday's gathering about the future the University's development plans are centered around and McCarter-University Place-Alexander Street as the "entering plaza" for the University of the future. What Mr. Dilley remarked that industry as a whole is growing in its awareness of financial responsibility for the arts.

An Arts Council, as Mr. McKenna explained on Wednesday, drawing on his knowledge of a similar organization in St. Paul, would be a kind of "United Fund" of the arts, selling an annual campaign goal based on the budgets of member organizations.

Also, an Arts Council might act as a fund-raiser for a new Princeton auditorium, freeing the University to use McCarter for its own purposes and providing the town with more flexible facilities or the Council might raise the money to air-condition McCarter, or add to the existing smaller theaters units and more storage space.

Who's in Charge Here? Both Mrs. Strinsky and Mr. McKenna said that the University would be a probably welcome more community support, but as someone remarked, if the University and the future Arts Council combine to air-condition McCarter, who would own the air-conditioning?

Mr. Dilley would like to see the Engineering Building on Witherspoon and Green become a home for the Arts Council after the new Borough Hall is built. He reminded the gathering that Wednesday that the structure was built with public — PWA — funds and he thought it should remain at least semi-public in use. The building has a small, but expandable auditorium with stage.

There is also the enticingly empty gym that formerly belonged to Miss Fine's School and is now the property of the Borough.

Ground will not be broken tomorrow for a Princeton public auditorium, but the formation of the Co-ordinating Committee indicated that some interesting offerings may be on the program in the seasons to come.

TOPICS Of The Town

ZONING HEARING MONDAY

Township Ordinance Revised. Representatives of Princeton University, the Italian-American Federation and the Princeton Housing Group are expected to appear next Monday at 8 in Township Hall when the revised zoning ordinance comes up for public hearing.

The University, which brought out its biggest guns last November to attack the ordinance's 100-foot height limitation provision, is now apparently more concerned about the 1200-foot setback provision. (The University was subsequently given permission to construct the controversial math-physics tower that set off most of the height argument.)

In an advertisement this week in Town Topics (page 21), a resident of Princeton and friend of the University states that if the 1200-foot setback had been in effect in the past, the University would not have been allowed to build 13 buildings, including Firestone Library, the Great Hall at the Hall, Dillon Gym, Palmer Physical Laboratory and McCarter Theatre.

Planning Board Chairman Hans K. Sander points out that the setback line has been drawn only where Township residential zones abut the Springdale area on the west, the Harrison-Western Way-Fitz-Randolph area on the east, not where Borough and Township meet on the campus. Thus the University, such as the Springdale area on the west, the Harrison-Western Way-Fitz-Randolph area on the east, not where Borough and Township meet on the campus. Thus the University, such as the Springdale area on the west, the Harrison-Western Way-Fitz-Randolph area on the east, not where Borough and Township meet on the campus.

Firestone Library, Alexander, Palmer, Guyot and McCosh Halls.

"Many Union buildings were constructed in the years when there was no Township" is a residential zone with many homes," Mr. Sander says. The situation is quite different today."

Position Explained. Two letters pertaining to the ordinance were released this week by the University. One dated January 5, was sent to the Planning Board by John P. Moran, director of the Division of Physical Planning, setting forth in a four-page documentation, the University's objections to the ordinance, and asking for a meeting with the Board.

The second, dated April 13, was sent to Township Mayor and Committee by University President Robert F. Goheen, urging postponement of action on the ordinance until the Planning Board can talk over the questions again with the University.

President Goheen, in his letter, states that the Planning Board never granted Mr. Moran's January 5 request for a formal, detailed meeting. Mr. Sander says that he and Committee Chairman Walter Foster did hold an informal meeting with Mr. Moran but declined to participate in further talks when it appeared that neither side had anything new to offer.

No Flag? Mr. Moran's January 5 objections include protests about height and setback limitations and lot coverage. His letter was written before Planning Board and Committee worked out a compromise setting 100 feet as the height limit, but providing a special-permit device for taller structures.

Mr. Moran is also disturbed about the section of the ordinance prohibiting "general plant operation" at night because he is afraid University laboratories, many of which

Panel Report Due

All Borough and Township School Board members will meet for the first time with Merger Panel members this Sunday to learn the Panel's recommendations on merger. The session will be held at the Community Park School.

According to panel chairman Lester V. Chandler, the boards will receive a written report on the state of the study. Two meetings were held with each board.

If the advice they give us is merger, we would want to take some action fairly soon," Mrs. Paul Strayer, Borough president, told Town Topics.

Panel members include Stanley C. Smoyer and Simon C. Marston of the Township, the Rev. Dr. Robert R. Spears Jr. and E. Alden Dunham of the Borough.

must operate on a 24-hour schedule, would have to shut down at 11 p.m.

President Goheen, writing of "practical technicalities," said "The University is denied the right to fly its flag in the Township."

Mr. Sander replies that "minor changes" is the ordinance.

"would settle both 'general plant operation' is not intended to apply to University laboratories, and the flag-flying refers to a prohibition against the kind of fluttering pennants frequently seen in gas stations."

The University's counsel also believes it is illegal to write into a zoning ordinance the agreement under which the University pays the Township public school costs. However, Mr. Sander states that the Board's attorney, Gordon D. Griffin, believes the provision would stand up in court.

Mr. Sander and Richard Tuttle, representative of Kendree Associates, the Township's planning consultant, say that about 65% of the points to which the University is now objecting have been in the Township's current ordinance, passed in 1955 for 11 years. They also say that during the four hearings of the 1964 draft version, these objections were not raised.

Members of the Italian-American Federation and the Princeton Housing Group are among those expected to speak in favor of amending the ordinance to allow more lower- and middle-income housing.

ed. All Community Park School children living on Lehigh Avenue, Witherspoon, Race and John Streets — more than 21 in all — will be transferred starting next fall to Riverside, Johnson Park and Littleton.

The change was made as a result of informal meetings held during the winter with parents of the boys and girls. One or two Township School Board members and Eugene Brinner, principal of Community Park, visited parents in their homes and talked about school problems.

Board members found that most Negro parents prefer having their children in other schools than Community Park even if it means busing, which it will.

"The families we talked to were interested in many aspects of our school program, not merely pupil allocation," said Laurence Holland Board member at Thursday night's regular School Board meeting.

"People talk much more freely and easily in their homes than in a large public meeting," observed Board president George Rice. "I suggest we use this approach in other areas of concern."

In the new allocation, all students south of Mercer Road will be transferred from Johnson Park to Riverside all those on Race and John will also attend Riverside. All those on Lehigh will go to Johnson Park all on Witherspoon, to Littleton. No new bus routes will be needed, said superintendent John J. McKenna.

Federation Receives Reply. Another group of Township residents with whom the Board would like very much to have informal, small-group discussions is the Italian American Federation.

In a three-page letter the Board has replied to the Federation's protest against Board rejection of the Borough's "Miller Plan."

As a start, the letter reminds the Federation that on two separate occasions the Board has offered an invitation to sit, offer Thomas McMahon in down and talk over school problems. It extends a third invitation, and adds: "We will call you soon to talk this over."

The remainder of the letter

re-states the Board's position against the "Miller Plan" and against the Federation that Borough and Township School Boards are continuing to communicate with one another on school merger.

Neighbors Gaiher. Mrs. George E. Brenon, Township School Board member, reported that regular weekly neighborhood meetings are being held throughout the municipality at the request of residents. Merger, a possible Township High School and the ways of evaluating a high school are all discussed with vigor and enthusiasm. Mrs. Brenon reported.

She added that as many as 10 residents' meetings are being held during room meetings. "I would like so much to have such a meeting with members of the Italian American Federation," she said.

In other business, the Board voted with alarm a letter from Township Engineer Frank K. Quibby on a proposed $250,000 paving project for Harris Road. Students have asked for the paving and the Board's share would be $90,000. The dead-end walk adjacent to the Harris Road School property, but the Board does not feel that paving would benefit the school.

According to state law, the Board members "have to go. If it doesn't want to, and on Thursday night, it didn't want to. Board member Leonard Bymerling was headed the assignment."

HOME HANDED. On Lehigh Road, The home of Stanmore V. Wilson, 67 Lafayette Road, was entered and ransacked early last week while the owners were out of town attending a funeral.

Chief Peter J. McMahon said the intruders ransacked the entire house, after entering through an open basement door. As far as the department can determine," he said, all that is missing are 20 to 30 silverware and Canadian coins which were taken from a small purse in a living room desk.

PH. Douglas Watson, a vestiged A. complete inventory of the house will be taken later, and said Chief McMahon said, "You need to talk this over."

In the Township, the office of the Heitz Rent-A-Car, 260 Witherspoon Street, was the scene of a theft during the weekend of a $30 portable record player and a portable TV set. Herbert Pomeroy of Trenton, the manager, notified the police.

According to Detective Fred Porter, access was gained by cutting a screen and breaking a window on the south side of the building. The TV set, a record player were removed from an office desk. Sgt. Jack Petrone and P.I. Henry Kiese Jr. investigated.

News Of The THEATRES

THE SOUND OF A SMASH
Records Broken. Advance ticket sales for "The King and I" are breaking records at McCarter Theatre.

The P. J. & B. musical, an annual spring bloom in Princeton, will be presented four times, and maybe a fifth, starting Thursday, May 5, and continuing Friday and Saturday, May 6 and 7 with a matinee on Saturday.

A record has already been broken in the number of people assigned to the cast — 138, including 72 Royal Children.

Anne Sheldon, who has appeared in all but one of the previous five P. J. & B. musicals, will be "Mrs. Anna," the teacher who undertakes to instruct the youngsters of the Royal Court of Siam. Mrs. Sheldon played Ruth in last year's "Gypsy," three years ago, and most notably, Miss Adelaide in "Guys and Dolls" in 1961.

The King will be Karl Light, whose last Princeton appearance was in the autumn of 1963 in the McCarter Repertory's production of "She Stoops to Conquer." He was Mr. Harecastle. He appeared on Broadway in "Inherit the Wind" and of Broadway in "The Alchemist."

McCarter reminds new comers that "P. J. & B." means "Princeton Junction and Back." Because so many members of the cast are commuters. Even this year director Jillion Lyon, Mr. Lyon commutes from Princeton to New York, and then comes back a gain each evening for rehearsals.

FOUR TO DANCE
In "Pas de Quatre," four dancers from Princeton and its environs will perform in "Pas de Quatre" for the annual spring program of the Princeton Regional Ballet. The dance

Sunday in the basement of the University Chapel. At the Sunday morning matinee and guests will be performing in three original sketches.

DRAMA WORKSHOP HERE

For Two here at PHS Festival '66, a drama workshop, will hold the stage at Princeton High School Thursday and Friday nights, beginning each evening at 7. Seven other schools will join the PHS Repertory Workshop, with the intermissions to be marked by music and song.

On Thursday, the performances will include Princeton High's "Timing of the Shrew," "Sunset on Fire," "Hells Out There," by Central Bucks and "Cathedral's" "The House of Bernardo Alba." The Madrigal Singers of PHS will be among these entertaining between the performances.

Friday night will be marked by Memorial High's "Purgatory," Salem High's "Short Haul," Hightstown to Camden and Trenton, "Spoon River Anthology," by Livingston and "Impromptu" by Freehold High. Awards will be presented at the end of Friday's program, with both nights open to the public without charge.

The Group (now playing) is a fast-moving, hot-blooded film about the crises in the lives of eight girls who formed "the group" as members of Vassar's Class of 1905.

It begins with a wedding and ends with a funeral, with assorted love affairs, marriages and careers in between. The film is an uncommonly faithful adaptation of the Mary McCarthy novel upon which it is based.

Most of the eight young actresses are unknown to filmgoers. Outstanding are Candace Bergen as Shirley Kaye, daughter of Polly and Jessica Walter as Libby.

The atmosphere of the Thirties, the ironic contrast of "the group" school song with the events the girls' lives, and the wondrous use of color in special touches. Some-where around the middle of the film, the audience will find a Princeton wedding.

Women particularly will like what they see.

IT'S NEW To Us

SNOWSUITS? OFF!
Sensational Well, Pretty Soon.
Sleeves are tossed aside, knees opened to the sun and small midriffs tickled by the aod in a new group of children's play clothes at Allen's.
And the thing we like most is that the garments are stylish and well-made to serve countless brothers and sisters as hand-me-downs.

Danskin makes a happy play group of shorts, T-shirts and sleeveless shirts. The sleeveless shirts are 2-14. They are bright candy pink, soft sky petal pink, navy, bright China blue, buttercup yellow, pink, blue or navy.
These Danskins can be tossed into the washing machine and into the dryer without losing anything but the dirt, and we'll bet your youngsters live in them from the first warm day.

Shorts are $3.50 and $3, depending on size. The sleeveless shirts are $4 and $5 for the stripes. Sleeveless are $4 and $5.

Polly Flinders spreads the curtain days in a sleeveless shorts. A young friend is terribly sophisticated in a Hawaiian print with row ruffle at the hem. A calico dress is just the same, with smaller flowers. The little Grayvies is the most endearing dress-if you can call it that-on the 2-14 rack. Prices start at $2.98 for the little sizes.

A hanky print in red bandanna with a 1960 touch. A light blue denim with a side-wrap look, has a half-inch band of calico swatches around its Henley neck and an applique of a girl's face in the same calico. A peernucker has two inches of red smocking high on the Granny front of its pale grey-white striping.

That Henley neck! If you haven't got it, you might as well not show up at school.
That's all. Allen's shows it on a cotton shirt for boys and on a brand new sweatshirt.
It's even been used on a women cotton sport shirt, solid or plaid. Did you ever?

Yours has been used for the V-neck boys' shirts, sizes 8 to big-brother 20. These are white, navy or maroon with narrow contrasting trim around the neckline.

IT'S MY DANSKIN! Danskins are almost as cool and comfortable as skin itself. These summer light-weights are at Allen's. (See "It's New to Us.")

Surfers, starting with size — and you know what han-den demons they are—will wear the swim trunks with the characteristic four-eyel let lap and that lean-jawed look.
Allen's has one with a navy right leg and a red left leg, and another in Princeton orange Helanca stretch.

Slay-press, by whatever brand name you call it. In the fabric mothers grab for, summerline or wintertime. As you know, it goes into the washer and dryer and looks freshly ironed the minute it comes out. It comes not only in slacks, where it is particularly welcome, but in boys' shirts. Even the stern button-down Oxforas have a stay press feature, and what a blessing that is!

Well, we were diverted momentarily from the little girls. They are swimming in two-piece bathing suits on Saturdays and one piece bathing suits on Sundays, just to show you the variety this season.

A one-piece polkadot (navy, red with white) has a low ruffled skirt and rickrack trim.
It comes in a two-piece as well, and has a matching Granny for modesty on the boardwalk.

Little girls can have the surfer look, too. And if you haven't seen a two-piece toddler's bathing suit with a sur-fer look, you've been building sand-castles on the wrong beach.

WAKE ME AT 7

A Nap in the Shade. Watercolor blues and greens on that floral chaise at Nassau Interiors, the cloud-white one with the curving scroll arms, are so inviting you'll be tempted to sink right down in it, and have a summer nap.

The white chaise, garlanded with ivy, is wrought-iron of course, but the upholstery is most definitely not. It provides soothing again on the spring armchair that matches the chaise and the matching sofa that matches the armchair. One big family.

We happen to like that white wrought-iron and the contrast it makes with the blue-green upholstery. But perhaps you're verdigris?
If you are—it sounds like maldemoir but is quite different —Nassau Interiors has a round table with diamond mesh top in deep verdigris. The table has a graceful pedestal rather like an opening flower, and a semi-circular bench to sit on while you munch lunch.
Same table comes in oblong.
By the way, with six matching chairs. Sit on them as is, or use bright colored pads.

Ripped, frosted glass is the top of a round wrought-iron table with the slimmest little pool chairs. Nearby, you might us: the love seat in him there, but to do so is like trying to harness quiescence.

Robards lives in a one-room walkup in New York with his nephew in a happy state of clutter until the Child Welfare Bureau team comes calling. There are kooky moments of romance, soul searching, abandonment of conventions and repression being freed.

Also, there are fine performers and a fluidity of camera movement that merge into a film many will enjoy, although the end result is not for the very young.

PRINCE

The Flight to the Phoenix now playing is a compelling suspense-drama. It opens with the crash landing of a lumbering cargo-passenger plane in a remote part of the Sahara Desert. Two of the 12 passengers are killed, a third is injured beyond hope of recovery.

The efforts at survival, based upon a genuine incident, make a powerful story. There is conflict, bravery, cowardice, ignorance, and treachery.

Much of the tension is generated by James Stewart as the bush league pilot and Hardy Kruger, the German airplane designer who wants to try to reconstruct the plane. With Richardattenborough as the patient placemaker, the highly competent performers are joined in by Peter Finch, Ernest Borgnine, Dan Duryea, and Ronald Fraser and Christian Marquand, with Barrie Chase making a brief appearance as an Oriental dancing girl.

"BEYOND THE FRINGE" Playhouse Opener. The satirical revue "Beyond the Fringe" will open the Bucks County Playhouse 1968 season this Saturday, playing the new Hope theatre through May 14.

The revue consists of a dozen comic sketches including "Aftermath of War," a spoof of World War II documentaries with the suggestion that war is wonderful because it gives everyone a chance to be a hero.

Another sketch is "So That's the Way You Like It," a parody of some of the plays written by that man who lived in Stratford.

John Jefferson, Geoff Gar-

FLIGHT PILOT: James Stewart heads an all-star international in a suspenseful drama, "The Flight of the Phoenix." Also in the Principal Land, Lionel Wilson and Brendan Burke are the Fringe foursome.

It's New To Us

white mesh with its yellow-white seats and the two matching chairs across the coffee table from you.

Perhaps the most unusual use of wrought iron at Nassau Interiors has been in the narrow pipe frame 20 inches wide, in quiet olive green with ripple-glass shelves narrow enough to be used alone in a small space or with identical pieces in a wider area. And coolly spicuous for a summer porch.

But all is not wrought. Nassau Interiors has a very sporty director's chair with a real leather sling for back and seat ($31.95), and more conventional director's chairs with canvas in various shades of cheer.

California peel cane chairs can be pale and tawny or richly sun-tanned. Nassau Interiors has both. There are love-seats, too, and matching circle tables.

IVY LEAGUE

Potted. Ivy, lovingly trained around a frame to grow in a cone, would be a charming addition to a shady patio this summer. Obal's Garden Market, around the curve and over the hill on Alexander Street in West Windsor, has these three-foot-tall pots with the ivy delightfully cone shaped.

Another trained plant at Obal's is the espalliered flex cotinus Burfordi ($19.50) already in full green leaf and berry. Next to it is a Juniper (Tortorial) espalliered, and obviously proud of its formal appearance. ($22.50). Splendid with a modern house and garden.

Orange for Princeton?

If it isn't true orange. It's about as close as you can come. Bright apricot, let's say.

We're speaking of a collection of violas we saw at Obal's Garden Market, and we can't imagine anything more diverting for a Princeton garden than a closely-packed bed of them.

Mix with some of those pansies so dark in purple they're almost black, and you've got a conversation piece.

The violas are next to the panny boxes at Obal's, so you can mix and choose for yourself.

New at Obal's this year is a collection of nice big eche.

MUSIC In Princeton

MISS COTTON COMING
With "Ramblers." Elizabeth Cotton, venerable folk-singer now in her seventies, will be guest artist with the New Lost City Ramblers when they come to Alexander Hall Saturday, May 14, at 8:30. The Princeton Folk Music Society is the sponsor.

Tickets are now on sale at McCarter and the Princeton University Store and by mail to McCarter Theatre, Box 528.

Miss Cotton will perform her own compositions as well as others, in the two-finger style known to guitar players as "Cotton-picking." She grew up with this traditional form of musical expression and instrumental both technique and songs from her family.

The Ramblers consist of Mike Seeger, John Cohen and Tracy Schwarz, all urban-born, far from the countryside whose music they interpret.

They have recently toured Australia, Europe and England, and were especially well received in England, where much of their music has its roots.

THE MASS, UNCUT

Bach Work to be Sune. A complete and uncut performance of the Bach Mass in B Minor will be presented on Monday, May 16, at 8 in McCarter Theatre by the 75-voice Westminster Choir and the New York Chamber Orchestra.

Dr. George Lynn, music director of Westminster Choir College, will conduct. Musicologists writing program notes for the event, remind music-lovers that Bach himself probably never heard an uncut version. The first two sections — the Kyrie and the Gloria — were completed in 1735 as a Missa Brevis. In the hope of receiving a court appointment, Bach presented the music to Augustus III, Elector of Saxony.

Many years later, in the late 1740's, Bach began transposing the brief mass into a complete one, freely borrowing from the church cantatas that he had written earlier. The actual period of composition, therefore,

Student Works Programmed. Two concerts of music by graduate student composers in Princeton University's music department will be given next Wednesday and Thursday, May 4 and 5, at 8:30 p.m. in Room 110, Woolworth Center. The public is invited.

Twelve student composers, not necessarily in a lone row, will present their works. They are students of Earl Kim, Milton Kabbitt and Geoffrey Winham. The compositions are scored for small groups of instruments, some with electronic sound as well as instruments, some with tape alone.

On Wednesday, the program will consist of a song by Philip Werren to words by D. H.

pots for nice big summer plants. A cylinder, two feet tall, is encircled by regular corrugations that give a pleasant texture. It comes in a sandy clay color or that muted grey-green that's so effective on a hot summer day. $11.

A wide pot—about a foot— we'd say—has a clay-colored high glaze and a low relief band of fruit garlands in the same color as the pot. It's $9.80.

Your favorite reedwood tubs, brass-banded, have been joined this spring by natural wooden tubs, black-banded. And in addition to the tub shapes, there are oblong boxes.

Obal's reminds you with a sign that "Every green thumb needs a red clay pot." And sure enough, those hard-to-find red clay pots are lined in a modest row, some classic in form, others flaring with flair.

It's rose-planting time, and Obal's presents its tea roses, floribundas, grandifloras and climbers in strong paper cylinders. Just add, open, plant, and wait for fragrance and beauty.

Andlers are in the wings at Obal's, waiting for the spotlight. So are the giant rhododendrons and the myriad perennials in their little boxes.

CHOOSING CARPET PATTERNS

The period of your furnishing will certainly influence your choice of a definite carpet pattern.

Some carpet patterns are muted and can be used with a variety of decorating schemes. Others are meant to underscore a definite style. Since patterns contain several colors in distinct designs, decorating with them requires a bit of planning.

There are four basic areas in which you can see patterns. On the floor, on the walls, in draperies, or in upholstery. When using more than one pattern in a room — let one pattern dominate.

Since the floor and the wall are the most dominant surfaces in a room, it is usually wise to use patterns on only one or the other.

Carpet patterns are practical underfoot and after a "bustle" in decorating scheme. You will probably change your drapery or upholstery fabrics more often than you change your carpet, so it's wise to pick up any one of the dominant colors in a carpet pattern for other furnishings to vary your decorating scheme. Generally it's wise to use a darker tone for the carpet and a lighter tone for the walls. Blending colors is much easier than trying to match colors exactly.

Treat sculptured textures and tone-on-tone patterns as if they were solid colors. This effect of "patterns" on the floor is subtle and adds interest without dominating the room or excluding the use of pattern elsewhere.

At E. Bahadurian & Son, with our many years experience in caring for rugs, we feel qualified to assist and advise you in the selection of rugs and carpets for your home. We have the facilities to handle any carpet job, room-size or wall-to-wall.

Both our Oriental rug and service and our domestic carpet sales and service are conducted by appointment only. This ensures that you are seen personally when you come to our showroom.

CHAMBER GROUP PLAYS
All - Mozart Program. On Monday night, the Princeton Chamber Orchestra, directed by Nicholas Harasanyi and featuring the Westminster Choir, presented its final Princeton concert of the season at McCarter Theater. Mr. Harasanyi chose an all-Mozart program which included one masterpiece and three lesser works to the master from Salzburg.

The concert began with the Ave Verum Corpus, K.618 for Chorus and Strings, a very brief little work which displayed little sound from the chorus and for too heavy a tone from the string ensemble which was supposed to be accompanying the choir. The performance seemed to begin and end before the audience had become comfortably settled.

Then, Mr. Harasanyi led his forces in a performance of the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin, Viola and Orchestra, K.364. The soloists in this most beautiful of Mozart creations, were Helen Kwalwasser, Violin, the concertmaster of the orchestra, and Karen Tuttle, viola, the first violin of the ensemble.

These two artists gave very creditable performances. Indeed, Miss Kwalwasser plays with musicianship, if not with virtuosity, but she plays with a thorough understanding and feeling for the music which is more than one can say for many a virtuoso performer.

Miss Tuttle's playing was truly superb. She presented a vigorous viola tone, full of conviction. Her expression was with a verve and passion not often heard in the violists of today.

The duet passage between violin and viola were beautifully balanced and a treasure to behold. Had the orchestral ensemble behind the fine players of the two artists been given more stimulating interpretation by its conductor, the Sinfonia Concertante would have been one of the orchestra's more memorable performances.

As it was, Mr. Harasanyi conducted the music in a stylized fashion, over-emphasizing the subtlest of the orchestra's genius placed in the background. A case in point is the gorgeous scale passage in the violin which he played as if it were a smooth leathery phrase, coming in on the off beat. The conductor failed to make too much of its unexpected quality, thereby breaking up this line into smaller fragments.

In general, the slow movement was beautifully played but the finale was weak. The orchestra seemed to lack spirit; the sound of the strings was not as well defined as in past performances by this ensemble.

Following the intermission, Mr. Harasanyi directed the orchestra in Mozart's Symphony No. 33 in B Flat, K. 319. This is not one of Mozart's most inspired efforts. The earlier No. 29 in A is far superior as are, of course, the final six, starting with No. 35.

The concluding work on the program was the "Vesperae solennes de Confiteor," K. 439 for chorus, soloists and chamber orchestra. The soloists included Lois Lavery, soprano; Lucille Lynn, alto; Robert Simpson, tenor and Ramon Ryer, bass.

Miss Lavery had the lion's share of the vocal work and though her voice is not a large one, she sang lustily. With the exception of the Laudate

Chamber Group Praised

"An ensemble of strings polished in sound, precise in execution and stylish in their musically approach."

With these words, Paul Hume, music critic of the Washington Post, described the Princeton Chamber Orchestra, which performed in Washington, D. C. in the President's Cabinet Series of concerts.

Irving Lowens of the Washington Star, commented on the "homogeneity of sound" achieved by conductor Nicholas Harasanyi in the concert given at the State Department Auditorium. He added that the orchestra was "so good that questions of acoustics simply didn't enter the picture."

Janice Harasanyi, soprano soloist in Britten's "Les Illuminations" was praised by Mr. Hume as "a musician of outstanding gifts."

Domina, a most beautiful portion of this score, the work is certainly not even close to Mozart's inspired best. This may have affected the choir's performance, for it was surely devoted to the works of a single composer. If one had to choose a specific composer for such a purpose, however, Mozart would certainly be a wise choice; but then, why not program the Haydn Symphony and the great Requiem in addition to the Sinfonia Concertante? If the orchestra forces need to be enlarged, so be it.

Compared with the attendance for the Series 1 and II concerts, the Princeton Chamber Orchestra has been playing to a half-filled hall. There is a great quantity of fine music for a chamber orchestra of this type. It should not be so difficult to arrive at the selection of interesting and well-balanced programs.

STUDENT SATISFIED
After Being Hit by Car. A Princeton University sophomore is recovering in the college infirmary, after being hit by a sports car early Sunday morning in front of 11 University Place.

Lawrence W. Tuttle, 19, 22 Hamilton Hall, was taken to Princeton Hospital by the First Aid and Rescue Squad and admitted for treatment of head laceration and a cerebral concussion. He was later released to the infirmary.

John L. Koethe, Jr., 20, 6A Campbell Hall, a University junior, told police he was traveling about 30 to 40 mph when the victim suddenly stepped backward into his path from where he was standing while talking to people in a parked car. Mr. Tuttle was given emergency first aid by Officer Allen E. Benkert, who added that his investigation indicated the victim was thrown partly over the roof of the sports car and across the car's upper right side. His windshield was shattered by the impact.

The car, a 1968 Austin Healey, was owned by Lewis P. Macdame, 214 Fonkie Hall. Mr. Koethe was charged with careless driving. Mr. Tuttle with impeding the flow of traffic.

Leo J. McCloskey, 39, 21 Bank Street, hit a parked car on Chambers Street late Saturday morning as he swerved when his attention was diverted by a blowing horn.

Owned by Ada A. Lloyd, 47 Tulane Street, the parked car was forced over the curb into a parking meter by the impact.

Mr. McCloskey was ticketed for careless driving by Sgt. Robert Anderson. He refused medical attention for a bloody nose.

Two accidents occurred in the Township early Sunday morning.

of Trenton, skidded on rain-slick Route 206 near Edgerstowne. His car, moving sideways, jammed the opposite curb, continued on some 53 feet and leveled three small plane trees on the property of Richard Westervelt, 264 Stockton Road.
Two passengers, Lyane
Goodwin, 17, and Claudette Haba, 16, both of Lawrenceville, refused medical attention for minor injuries. There were no charges.

At 1:37, a 1966 convertible driven by Raymond Williams, 24, of Edison, and a 1965
Mustang driven by Howard C.
Peterson, 22, of New Canaan, Conn., came together at the Kington Bridge. Peterson and William H. Morgan, 25, both of the Graduate College, were treated at Princeton Hospital for cuts and abrasions and released.

Mr. Williams received minor injuries. He told township police he felt his car slipping on the approach to the bridge and was unable to make the curve. He was charged with failing to keep right.

of buildings exceeds the allowed percentage of aggregate built area, then as a matter of courtesy (although the statutes do not require it), other tenants should be notified since their interests could be involved, as in this case. The Board of Adjustment will not allow itself to become involved in litigation nor to be subject to a charge of possibly being arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Therefore, to allow the parties an opportunity to resolve their differences prior to formal presentation and to allow objectors to adequately prepare their case, this matter is continued for another month.

In its only other action, the Board unanimously granted a space-ratio variance to Joseph L. Bolder, 124 Parkside Drive, to build a four-bedroom addition to his house. Mr. and Mrs. Bolder have 11 children.

X marks the spot — and has for decades on end!

The boldface X's above are one measure of the arbitrary nature of the proposed Princeton Township Zoning Ordinance as far as the projected 1,200-foot setback (almost a quarter-mile!) is concerned. And there are dozens of other highly questionable provisions which should be challenged at the public hearing — Township Hall, Monday, May 2, at 8:00 p.m.

IF such an ordinance had been the law of the land as early as 1877, 1890, 1907, 1922, 1929 or even 1947, ground could NOT have been broken for any one of these crossed-out buildings on the main Princeton University Campus.

These are the "illegal structures" and the years they became part of Princeton:

Alexander Hall (1892)	Firestone Library (1947)	McCormick Hall (1922)
Dillon Gymnasium (1947)	*Great Hall at the Graduate College (1913)	McCosh Hall (1907)
Dod Hall (1890)	Guyot Hall (1909)	Palmer Laboratory (1908)
Edwards Hall (1880)	McCart Theatre (1929)	Pyne Hall (1922)
		Witherspoon Hall (1877)

*—The Great Hall at the Graduate College dominated by Cleveland Memorial Tower lies beyond the limits of this map as do two of Princeton Theological Seminary's beloved structures. Brown and Hodge Halls, both of which would be "illegal" under the 1,200-foot setback stipulated in the proposed Township Ordinance.

THEY WATCH AND WAIT
 At Bird Sanctuary, The star of these spring days at the Stony Ford Audubon Center on Pretty Brook Road is an impudent sparrow who has no business being around here at all, according to ornithologists who know bird habits and habits.

He is the Harris Sparrow spotted earlier this month and will be a regular visitor to the feeding stations at Stony Ford. Sometimes he comes for only five minutes, sometimes he stays around for quite a time, presumably preening his feathers, enjoying all the publicity and hoping everyone will catch his best profile.

Visitors have come to the sanctuary from as far away as St. Louis just to see the sparrow, and visitors up and down the eastern seaboard are almost as prevalent as Princeton Cab Seats.

Four field trips for adults have been scheduled for the coming spring weeks. This Saturday, Raymond Blichartz will lead a trip for bird-watchers WATCHING THE BIRD WATCHERS: A blind has been constructed from burlap to shield Stony Ford bird-watchers from Stony Ford birds. The sanctuary, still and twitting this spring, is particularly proud of its unspectated guest, the Harris Sparrow. Bird-watchers who sit long enough will probably see him: he loves an audience.

At 7 a.m. Richard Thorrell, Regional Secretary, which recently purchased the Borough Park Watersheds Association, will lead another walk on Saturday, May 1.

Charles Rogers, ornithologist, will lead a trip for birders on Saturday, May 28. Miss Dorothy Compton, retired science teacher formerly with the Borough public schools, will lead a wildflower walk next Wednesday, May 4 at 4 p.m.

There is no charge for any of these trips, but since a maximum of 15 persons will be accepted, reservations should be made by calling 466-2431.

The Stony Ford Center is open every day except Sunday and Monday but even when the offices are closed, visitors may wander around the grounds on their own, examining and reading the explanatory signs and manning the bird-blind. (See photo.)

DEFENDS CAR DESIGN: "The average American car is pretty darn safe," says Bob Applegate, long-time mechanic for Turney Motors. The biggest thing in his opinion on the subject of car safety is the guy behind the wheel. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think the government should have the power to compel safety changes in the design of automobiles?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Carl Anderson, 100 Stockton Street, Seminary student: Yes—within limits. I think the biggest problem however, rests with the driver. You could build an armored tank and still have a driver who may or may not be able to control it. I think drivers who reach a certain age should be examined every year; I think cars should be made more often from the west coast and I can see the advantage of car inspections every year the way it is set up in New Jersey. I think it should be a two-pronged attack. If you go after only the manufacturer, you're really not facing the problem squarely. The real problem is more often the driver—drunk drivers, careless drivers, inconsiderate drivers—it's like putting the cart before the horse.

Irving Wrean, Trenton, employee, food services, Princeton University: No, I feel it's the government steps in and sets up certain standards of design it may say, "Look from now on you will build cars with only three wheels." If the public doesn't go for it, the manufacturers will be stuck. I think this question of safety should be left up to the makers.

Matt McGonigle, Yardley, Pa., salesman: Yes and no. It shouldn't be necessary. I should think the auto industry would do it on their own, but it seems they haven't done it on their own. What possibly could be done would be for the government to set up standards and give the manufacturers the opportunity to follow through. If this doesn't work... but I think this was done the manufacturer would comply with the government ruling with it wouldn't be necessary to force them. I don't like to see the government forcing anybody to do anything.

Thomas Babashak, Trenton, clerk, administrative services for Shell Chemicals, Clarksville, Yes, I think they should because I feel the auto manufacturers aren't paying too much attention to safety themselves. They only acted after they started getting a lot of complaints and after being forced to by public opinion.

Ivan Riddick, 290 Witherspoon Street, employee, Princeton Laboratories: Something like this becomes an individual thing. I think it should be up to the manufacturer and the buyer to be able to choose what safety features he wants. He doesn't have to buy them all if he doesn't want to. Actually, I think the manufacturers is a good lot of offering the buyer safety features. I don't think the government would want to intervene in something like this. In a way I guess they are looking out for the safety of the people but I still think that the auto industry should be allowed to police themselves.

Bob Applegate, Hightstown, mechanic, Turney Motors: Somewhat, but not complete control. I think you're going into free enterprise here, letting free enterprise what to do. The auto industry is a big dent in our economy. I agree a lot of these safety features are good, but they cost money and the factories want to sell their product, too. Somebody's got to foot the bill. I think the government ought to have a little engineering background and find out how cars are built before it is allowed to set standards. I really think the biggest thing is the guy behind the wheel. The government can't do anything about that. If a guy falls asleep at the wheel the best built car in the world isn't going to stand up. I'd say the average American-built car is pretty darn safe and I've been around cars a long time. Drivers must be taught to drive within reason and that they've got a lot of weight and a lot of horsepower to control and a lot of road regulations to follow.

Victory Sabary, 436 Harrison Street, self-employed: I think the government should have regulatory jurisdiction but that actual safety design be left up to the engineering departments of the various automotive manufacturers.

Henry Rousseau, Tulane Street, graduate student, languages: Yes, because the manufacturers might not do it themselves. I think there would be a tendency on their part to drag their feet unless they were forced to.

Mrs. David Jensen, 51 Maple Street, housewife: Yes, I do, indeed, because of the terrible accident rate. Something certainly should be done about design. Is compulsory to have seat belts here? I just came from England and I don't know but I think this would be a good example. I think they should be mandatory in every state.

Window Cleaning Service. 124 Nassau Street: Yes, I think so. We've got a lot of nuts on the roads as it is. Actually, they ought to reinforce the front ends of all cars. If you hit something the whole front ends give away. I think the government is qualified enough to lay down certain safety standards.

Ralph Elder, Hopewell, Mechanic for Rich's Service Station, 235 Nassau Street. No, they got their fingers in too many things already. This is one thing they should stay out of. I don't feel the safety thing has that much to do with it, anyway. The person driving has more to do with safety than the car itself.

Ernie Singleton, Trenton, mechanic, Turley Motors Inc. I don't think the government should have any control over the manufacturers. The manufacturers have been able to put out safe cars to this point, why should the govern-

ART In Princeton

ARTISTS IN BUD

Cino D. Cicchini & Co. The Art Association is showing at McCarter Theatre works in various mediums by Cino Cicchini and his young students. Mr. Cicchini, who teaches at the Riverside School was "key" in setting up the Riverside Art Shows, which have done much to bring children in contact with different art forms in a casual way and in a familiar atmosphere. In his classrooms, he is noted for the contagion of enthusiasm and for fostering experimentation and self-expression.

His children's exhibits at McCarter are four in all, and are full of movement and spirit. The composition "Birds" is a mosaic tree, has a lot of style. These are pretty accurate group projects and certainly have been instructive in design and material sense.

Cino Cicchini's own works are paintings, collages, sculpture, wool yarn designs and constructions. His gift for fantasy is usually evident in all the major piece called "Stalking, Watching Lion," a collage composition with an array of flowers and birds surrounding his lion, all made of stitched materials, beads and buttons. "At Bouquet" is more true to life with a contrast of high key blooms with a dark outer mass which forms a frame within a frame. "Artist's Lunch" will amuse; it is rather substantial provender for a proverbial starving artist in his attic.

An active imagination, a curiosity and excitement for a study of different ways of expressing an idea are all there in Cicchini's work. It's wonderful that this can be communicated to the students so successfully.

Toshiko Takaezu. We are accustomed to being pleased by the tasteful arrangement of exhibits at Gallery 100. Sometimes there is an exceptionally appealing look which we find there now in the show of ceramics and textiles by Toshiko Takaezu, through May 21.

Pots are difficult to present one after another, no matter how individual they may be. These have been shown in full advantage, two or three of contrasting size and shape against a white wall, lit from above so that the shadows emphasize their contours and dramatize the whole effect. Others blend harmoniously with lengths of fabric. Miss Takaezu's handwoven materials, the colors and textures of cloth and stone are playing with and against each other.

Still other pots hold their own beneath heavily woven rugs which, to many of us, in design and color seem to be the strongest and most fascinating artistic expression in the show. One of the rugs called "Early Spring" communicates the awakening of woodland. The trees are in transition from black to grey with a touch of lavender and yellow ochre creeping into the bark and branches. The treatment of the wool, used heavily and lightly, loosely and tightly, is an intriguing study.

In the short biography prepared for the gallery, one word—"integrity"—stuck in our minds as being the crux of the description of Miss Takaezu's work. None fits better the attitude so obvious in her pots and textiles. Some shapes, some textures we enjoy more than others, but all exhibits have been approached with honesty and a determination to make each object complete in itself.

Watercolors at Nassau. Watercolors by Dagmar H. Tribble are being shown at the Nassau Club until May 15. Mrs. Tribble has worked many years as a fashion designer, teacher and artist. She is a member of the American Watercolor Society.

The National Association of Women Artists and the National Arts Club and she has received many important awards in national exhibitions. In Princeton, she has been instrumental in starting the Princeton Art Association and has shown in local shows for many years. In 1964 she had a one man show at the Present Day Club.

Her present collection of works is truly additive to the spring. One comes away with a happy impression of a deftly chosen group of the numerous still lifes composed of pale yellow blossoms. Galets of color and a nice sense of using the medium broadly show in most of the pictures. We noted especially a still life with daffodils against a cyclamen plant, the flowers of which were beautifully handled as well as the whole design. Only one beach scene was exhibited, and though small, it has a sharpness and fair which we like in that well-remembered series.

Student Weaving Show. This week in the windows of Clayton's on Palmer Square, there will be shown rugs, tapestries and wall hangings done by the students of Ann Demare-Willemans who is well-known to Princeton for her strong gay tapestries and her valuable contributions to the artistic life of the community.

Her classes are small and her students are hard working. They are urged to cut and dye their own materials, (perhaps you have seen the wool hanging like so much spaghetti on bushes and lined around town) and they must create their own designs.

Clara Litvack's home portrait of her dog is one of the outstanding offerings, well-designed, interestingly worked and most amusing. Margaret Heagy has one style in a classic New England attic worked out in "Flower Spray" with subtle colors and intricate design. Alison Pinner uses a wonderful non-American color scheme and others experiment with realistic and abstract ideas. It is interesting to see what a variety this medium produces.

Midland School Benefit. An exhibit of painting seldom available for public showing will be attraction of "A Collection of the Arts" to be held at Hamilton Farm for the benefit of the Midland School for Brain-Injured Children on April 30, (from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.) and on May 1, 2, and 3 (from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.). Admission for adults is $2 and for students, $1.

Besides the works of Impressionists and Post-Impressionists, there will be a show of contemporary art made possible through the cooperation of the Arts Council of Madison, the Crafts Student League of New York and Gallery 100 of Princeton. Tickets for this event are on sale at Gallery 100, 100 Nassau Street.

POSTER SHOW OPENS. At the Mercer Street Gallery. An exhibition of posters executed by leading American artists for the "Paris Review" magazine is now open at the Arts Council Gallery of Madison. The posters consist of a series of silk screens and lithographs representing a variety of styles and subjects.

Among the artists represented are Princeton University's artist-in-residence Estelle for the "Paris Review" magazine is now open at the Arts Council Gallery of Madison. The posters consist of a series of silk screens and lithographs representing a variety of styles and subjects.

The show will run until May. The Mercer Street Gallery is also displaying graphics, drawings and watercolors by young artists in New York and Paris.

QUIET WEEKEND DUE

Most Tiger Teams on Road. Virtually every Princeton athletic team will be in action away from home this weekend, creating a major lull in spectator sports. Between the unseasonably chill weather and the troubles that have beset most of the Tiger units of late, disappointment may be the principal dish served up by the time the 1966 season comes to a close.

Last weekend was a particularly dark day for those who sat in on the proceedings at Clarke Field, trekking to the lake to watch the crew races and then waited for the lacrosse score from Providence. In simultaneous action, the ball team lost its fourth in its last five games, all six crews which had won a week earlier at Annapolis were defeated on Carnegie, and the lacrosse team took its worst beating since formal Ivy play began a decade ago.

In Palmer Stadium, Harvard's powerful track team continued its mastery over Princeton with a 92-61 triumph, moving into its third year without a loss in dual meet competition. The last time the Tigers defeated a Crimson team in this sport was in 1922, although the series lapsed for many years after World War II. There was success recorded on two fronts, as untested records were maintained in tennis and golf. Georgetown became the tennis team's fourth straight victim by a 2-5 score, while the golfers trimmed Army, 3-2, and Colgate, 4-3, at Springdale to run their record to 6-0. Of all the spring sport teams, however, Coach John Conroy's racket squad has a good chance of winning a league title.

Penn, Cornell Sweep. Every one of the Princeton crews which went to the stake boats Saturday on Lake Carnegie was defeated, in each case by opponents which were rowing for the first time this season. In contrast, the races were the third for each entry in the Tiger navy.

Cornell's 150-lb. shells opened the program by taking the freshman, Jayvee and variety races. The libran freshmen came from behind to triumph by a scant foot; the varsity's victory — by a length and a quarter — added to its perfect record that dates back to 1961.

Pennsylvania's varsity had a bit of trouble pulling away from Princeton and Columbia in the Child's Cup race, but at the mile mark, owed a full length lead. Orange and Black oars drove hard with a half mile to go, cutting into the Quakers' margin and eventually narrowed the deficit to half a length.

Penn remained in control, however, leading by that margin at the finish. A good tail wind aided in the highly creditable time of 9:38.1, with the Tigers clocked in 9:40. Columbia, rowing in a borrowed rig, was five lengths off the pace.

The race was delayed for 20 minutes while the New Yorkers went back to the boat house for repairs to their shell. Exliery, Penn freshman and Jayvee crews led Princeton across the line by respective margins of four and one length, with Columbia always a distant third.

The regatta ended the brief home rowing season, with the Compton and Carnegie Cup races on the schedule during the next two weekends. Harvard, the nation's best in 1965, will be heavily favored to defeat Princeton and MIT, in the Compton Cup regatta on the Charles River Saturday.

Yale and Cornell are the opposition the following week at Ithaca. The Tigers have not won in that event since 1952.

LACROSSE TEAM DRUBBED By Brown, 11 to 3. Years that Brown has the best lacrosse team in the Ivy League turned into a nightmare Saturday at Providence as Princeton's defending champions absorbed a wholly unexpected 11-3 shellacking. The triumph left the Bruins, who only joined the circuit three years ago, in firm possession of first place with a 5-0 mark and a tie for the 1966 title. They have only a game with Cornell at

No worse than 2-2 at the end of the first period, the Tigers saw their defense come apart and their attack silted during the remainder of the game. Brown beat goalie Graeme Flanders four times in the second quarter in lead, 6-2, at the intermission, and raised its margin to 9-3 before the third round ended.

Princeton will face last-place Harvard at Cambridge Saturday, aware that its long domination of the Ivy League is nearing an end. Not since 1886, when Yale won the title in the first year of play, has the Orange and Black finished out of first place.

TRACK TEAM HOPEFUL

Of Victory over Yale. Off a number of good performances against Harvard, Princeton's track team may repeat its 1964 triumph over Yale Saturday at New Haven. The Tigers will, however, need the return of a number of men who have been out with a variety of injuries.

Eight records — one a Palmer Stadium mark — were either tied or broken despite a stiff, generally chill wind — continued on Page 25

Pennies play their part in all our lives. They once paid for a lollipop or a back-yard "circuit" show. Perhaps today the penny may buy less, but the importance of putting pennies aside in savings is a fine lesson for a child to learn. Pennies are important at the Princeton Bank, because every penny added to others builds dollars. Even if you feel your banking business is penny size, there's a welcome waiting for you at any of the three offices of the Princeton Bank, where Personal Banking service is open to all.

DOLLARS

Dollars grow and grow when you start your own firm policy of saving a part of all you earn. You can't keep all the dollars you earn, but a part is yours to keep — to save. And if emergencies arise, when you need cash for a new home or a new car, Personal Banking service will make it easy for you to borrow and pay back the simplest and least expensive way. Get acquainted today with any of the experienced Personal Banking people at the three convenient offices of the Princeton Bank. They are interested in you.

"The Trophy Belongs to Princeton, Not to Me"

Last month, Bill Bradley received the James E. Sullivan Award as the Amateur Athlete of the Year — the only basketball player so honored in more than three decades. Last week, in a typically selfless gesture, he gave the trophy to Princeton University.

The occasion was the annual dinner of the University Cottage Club — held Friday in New York — and Bradley was present during a brief break in his studies as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford. He held the 200 Princeton trophy at the dinner:

"After careful thought, I have decided to follow my strong desire by giving my Sullivan Award trophy to Princeton in expression of my gratitude for the opportunity to play basketball at Princeton and to play basketball under conditions which apply to Princeton athletes."

"I believe that this award came to me as much because I played at Princeton as because I may have played well." The Sullivan Award was given to Bradley "for the Amateur Athlete who by performance, example and good influence did the most during 1965 to advance the cause of amateur sports and good sportsmanship."

According to the trophy on the University's behalf was Asa S. Bushnell, also a Cottage Club member, former Director of Athletics at Princeton and now Commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference. "Princeton," he said, "needs nothing to help it remember Bill Bradley, but I know that the University will deeply appreciate this meaningful gift."

Otherwise, the Tigers were completely docile, the last 15 batters going out in order. Another fine pitching performance by Graham Marcott was unavailing, although it did serve to increase the number of innings he has pitched in league action to 18 with only one earned run.

Dartmouth scored in the first on successive singles and a fielder's choice. The victors' second tally, in the fourth, was made possible by an error charged to Ron Landeck at short.

Further frustrating indication of Princeton's inability with sophomore Endriak's half-mile ranking as one of the top performers in the east this spring.

Earlier in the week, the Tigers won from Rutgers, 85 to 70. The outcome, ranked as an upset on previous form shown by the two teams, was the Scarlet's first loss in five meets.

For Dartmouth pitcher, the trouble that Princeton's baseball team has had making base hits was thoroughly in evidence again on Saturday as the Tigers lost to Dartmouth, 2-0, on Clarke Field. It was the identical score by which the Green had won at Hanover last spring.

Indian hurler Pete Buehrer came close to allowing no hits at all. The first Tiger safely was a hunt by Frank Biondi that would have gone foul had blowing into the breeze during the meet with Harvard. Top performance was a seven-foot leap in the high jump by Chris Forde of the Crimson, bettering by two inches his achievement here two years ago.

Despite a triple by Harvard's Ron Wilton, who won the hammer, shot and discus, Princeton took four firsts in the field event — including a 130 1/4" performance in the pole vault that broke a meet record dating back to 1926. Gerald Black got credit for that one.

The victors won every track event save the 800 and the mile, which went to Jack Radzik and Al Andreini in the fine times of 1:51.4 and 4:13.4.

Princeton has now met records.

with sophomore Endriak's half-mile ranking as one of the top performers in the east this spring.

Earlier in the week, the Tigers won from Rutgers, 85 to 70. The outcome, ranked as an upset on previous form shown by the two teams, was the Scarlet's first loss in five meets.

NEAR NO-HITTER

For Dartmouth pitcher, the trouble that Princeton's baseball team has had making base hits was thoroughly in evidence again on Saturday as the Tigers lost to Dartmouth, 2-0, on Clarke Field. It was the identical score by which the Green had won at Hanover last spring.

Indian hurler Pete Buehrer came close to allowing no hits at all. The first Tiger safely was a hunt by Frank Biondi that would have gone foul had the third baseman let it roll. The second was a loud double off the bat of Bob Weber that curved just enough away from left fielder Barry Machado to keep it from being caught.

Otherwise, the Tigers were completely docile, the last 15 batters going out in order. Another fine pitching performance by Graham Marcott was unavailing, although it did serve to increase the number of innings he has pitched in league action to 18 with only one earned run.

Dartmouth scored in the first on successive singles and a fielder's choice. The victors' second tally, in the fourth, was made possible by an error charged to Ron Landeck at short.

Further frustrating indication of Princeton's inability with sophomore Endriak's half-mile ranking as one of the top performers in the east this spring.

Earlier in the week, the Tigers won from Rutgers, 85 to 70. The outcome, ranked as an upset on previous form shown by the two teams, was the Scarlet's first loss in five meets.

lasted less than two innings and departed on the short end of a 3-0 count. A rare Tiger rally brought the Orange and Black a 4-3 lead but it vanished shortly thereafter on the wings of considerable inept play. The contest was marred by a total of 18 strikeouts, 11 walks and 11 errors.
The Nassau nine heads for New England this weekend. Brown is on the schedule Friday and Harvard Saturday.

TRACKMEN WIN TWO
For 3-1 Meet Record. Led by the return of sprinter Vito Boccanfuso and giving an improved showing in the fast races, the Princeton High School track team recorded a pair of victories last week. Bridgewater-Raritan fell Friday, 74-51, and New Brunswick last Wednesday, 64-62.

Ahead lies a key meet Friday with Trenton. PHS coach Jerry Groninger described Trenton, the host team, as "one of the stronger opponents we'll meet this year." He added: "Our high jumpers and sprinters will have to come through and we'll have to score a lot of seconds and thirds."

Tuesday, the Blue and White will entertain Natick, Dane. Starting time is 4 p.m.

Sweeping to a first place finish in 11 of 14 events, PHS little trouble outdistancing Bridgewater. Once again, the team was led by Bart Bennett, who captured both the low and high hurdles and the broad jump (20-31/2), marking the third time he has pulled this slender but tricky in four meets. Thirt now has 38 points and Groninger reported that if he continues at this rate "the pole distance," then Bart will set a school scoring record.

Other first place winners: Ed McEwen in the 100 (10.9); Pete Michael in the mile (4:47); George Fifield in the 800 (5:41); Boccanfuso in the 220 (23.5); Don Corrington in the 440 (1:29.0); Carl Desavallante in the shot (51-4); and Keith Conover in the javelin (179-3/4). Bob Way continued undefeated in the pole vault with a leap of 11-0. Boccanfuso, Dave Moomaw and Dan Tindale finished second in the 100, 440 and javelin respectively.

Sweet Taste of Victory. Sweet as the Bridgewater win was, it couldn't approach the sugar content of the 64-62 cliff-hanger over New Brunswick. It marked the second consecutive year PHS has squeaked by the always-strong Zebras — 1965's margin was 33-58 — and last year's triumph was the first ever recorded by a Princeton High squad over New Brunswick.

Victory for both schools hung on the outcome of the broad jump, where PHS needed a second to win. It got it from (who else?) Bennett. Ironically, Bennett's meet-winning jump of 20-7 was the best of his career, yet it marked the first time this season he failed to win the event.

"All our runners did an excellent job," commented Groninger. "Boccanfuso's scoring helped and we had some crucial placements, especially two thirds by Wood and Fifield." Craig Wood was third in the 800 and Fifield in the 440. Although the Little Tigers crossed the finish line.

The lead changed hands fre-

Electricity is today's biggest household bargain

Although your electric bills may be higher now than they were back in 1940, consider all the appliances you've added — appliances which spell the difference between old fashioned drudgery and modern living. In fact, the average home uses more than four times the amount of electricity today than in 1940. But the combination of rate reductions and increased use of electricity has resulted in a 44% decrease in the average unit cost of electricity since then. Yes, by bucking the trend of soaring prices, we've been able to maintain electricity's position as your biggest — and best — household bargain.

How To Survive

We learned that national authorities have listed the most frequent causes of fires as follows: Heating the furnace, smoking, use of matches; 2. Electrical defects; 3. Short-circuited circuits; 4. Defective heating equipment; 5. Careless handling and use of flammable liquids; 6. Defective or overloaded chimneys and pipes; 7. Children and matches; 8. Sparks on roofs. The first three hazards cause almost three out of four of all home fires. We advise that the best way to put out a fire or grease fire on the stove is to place a metal cover on the burning pot or pan. Zoll deserved better treatment than he received Friday in the heat of the fifth, when Hun scored three runs. Scott Anderson reached base via an error by Jack Van Zandt, second baseman for PHIS. Anderson promptly scored and advanced to third on an infield out. He scored when Tom Yoder batted. Mike Miller's shot at short for a two-base error.

Miller stole third. Tommy Wood, hurling for the Little Tigees, hit Jim MacLeod. MacLeod stole second. Catcher Rudy Beisel then hit a comebacker to Wood, who threw hard and wide-to first. Miller and MacLeod scoring on the three-base error.

PHIS ended with six errors. Hun, in turn, committed four. Sandy Bing, Hun coach, summed it up when he said, "We're team deserved to win."

PHIS scored two runs in the second when Carl Mitchell doubled and came home on a single by Wood who advanced on a throwing error by Tom Howell. Hun shortstop, Wood later scored on catcher's choice. A leadoff double by Van Zandt in the fifth was wasted.

At Trenton Thursday, PHIS suffered the agony again this season of losing in the first inning. Chris Fischer, hard-look senior southpaw for PHIS, gave up only two hits but sustained his third defeat with out a win.

He had largely himself to blame. Pete Simonelli, Trenton third baseman, singled after one was down in the seventh, and advanced to third on two wild pitches. He scored when catcher Lou Balestrieri threw the ball into left field trying to nail him at third.

PHIS tallied one run in the third on singles by Fischer and Mitchell, and Yoder sacrificed to take a 1-0 lead. It was short-lived as Trenton expanded with three runs in the same inning.

The visitors earned a 3-1 tie in the fifth, combining singles

SAFE: Although the umpire's hands have yet to make the signal, Carl Mitchell is safe sliding into home plate in the fourth inning in Friday's PHIS-Hun contest. Hun catcher Rudy Beisel, in trying to make a play, attempted the tag too soon and dropped the ball.

by Balestrieri and Yoder, and error and two outs for two runs. A rare play occurred in the third. With the bases loaded, Bill Kahn popped up to first baseman Tom Butlerford for PHIS for an automatic out but Butlerford dropped the ball and the runner from third scored.

Yoder leads the club in hitting with a .333 average. He is a sophomore. Carl Mitchell has had three hits in the last two games.

McQuade Out: The team has been weakened with the loss for at least four weeks of Billy McQuade, its shortstop and captain. McQuade broke a small bone in his wrist sliding into first in the Hamilton game.

He was coaching third in his sling at the Hun game and told Carl he would be available as a pinch runner. "He's a real competitor," said Zoll. "I like to see attitude like that. He doesn't shrivel up; he's got guts."

HUN NINE WINS THREE

In Four Days, A coach couldn't ask any more of a team than to win three games in four days and that was the happy situation Hun coach Sandy Bing was in at the end of last week.

Saturday, Hun scored five runs in the fifth inning to defeat Bryn Athyn here, 5-3. The day before it edged its cross-town rival PHIS, also by one it held on to survive a late-inning rally and defeat Piny, 7-5. The string increased its record to 4-1. The only Penn-Jersey League contest was the Bryn Athyn game where Hun is now 2-0-1.

On Saturday, Hun will entertain Parkman in a League contest which will mark the midway point in its 13-game schedule. Starting time is 2:30.

Down 2-1 in the Bryn Athyn game, Hun erupted for five runs aided by doubles by Ken Kelley, Tom Howell and Mike

Obituaries

Thomas J. Wertenbaker, 87, of 42 Prospect Avenue, former chairman of the history department at Princeton University, died on April 22 at Princeton Hospital after suffering a stroke. He was the husband of Mrs. Sarah M. Wertenbaker.

Dr. Wertenbaker, an authority of the American colonial period, held the Edwards American history chair, emeritus, at the University. He was a member of the faculty for 27 years, retiring in 1947.

A native of Charlottesville, Va., Dr. Wertenbaker was graduated in 1902 from the University of Virginia, which awarded his doctorate in 1910 after his career. He was taught at Virginia, where his grandfather had been appointed librarian by the school's founder, Thomas Jefferson.

Dr. Wertenbaker served as editor of the Baltimore News for several years. He was a member of the New York Evening Sun editorial staff from 1917 to 1923. In 1923, he was appointed Edwards Professor of American History at Princeton, becoming department chairman three years later. He served one-year periods on the faculties of the University of Göttingen, Germany, and at Oxford University.

His most significant work was a three-volume series, "The Founding of American Civilization." He also published "Virginia Under the Stars," "Patrician and Plebeian in Virginia," "Planters of Colonial Virginia," and "The First American." His last major work, "Give Me Liberty: The Struggle for Self Government in Virginia," was published in 1956. He also wrote a history of Princeton University.

The British government honored Dr. Wertenbaker in 1946 for his service as chairman of the Princeton chapter of British war relief during World War II. He was a past president of the American Historical Society and belonged to numerous other historical groups. He received the New Jersey Historical Society Award for distinguished contributions.

A baseball enthusiast, he was a familiar figure at the University's home games. He was also an accomplished amateur architect, having de-

Satisfaction Guaranteed

When Dr. Thomas J. Wertenbaker, whose obituary appears on this page, joined the Princeton faculty, Woodrow Wilson was President of the University. Dr. Wertenbaker often enjoyed telling his anecdote:

An anxious mother inquired of President Wilson, "Are you sure that you can give my son the education he needs?"

The Wilsonian replied: "Madame, we guarantee satisfaction or we return the boy."

signed a fraternity house at the University of Virginia and his own home in Princeton.

Thomas J. Wertenbaker Jr. of Albuquerque, N. M.

Gravestone services were held at the University of Virginia cemetery. Local arrangements were under the direction of the Mother Funeral Home.

Mrs. J. Winifred Asher, 84, of 46 Nassau Street died on April 13 while visiting her son in Newport News, Va. She was the widow of H. B. Asher.

A native of Iowa and a former school teacher in Marshall County, Ia., Mrs. Asher was employed by the Bell Telephone Company of Michigan for 35 years. She was a member of the Senior Citizens Club of Princeton.

Surviving are five children, Mrs. Wilma Davis, with whom she lived; Mrs. Phyllis Williams of Franklin, Mich.; James Stewart of Waterloo, Ia.; Peter Stewart of Marshalltown, Ia.; and Kenneth Stewart of Newport News. IN CYO GAMMA LEAGUE

Nike Maguire, who capped a nine basketball career at St. Paul's School this month, has been named the most valuable player of the southern division of the Catholic Youth League grammar school division. This latest honor came at a swag dinner Sunday at St. Anthony's High School in Trenton, where Ed Hammer, captain-elect of the University basketball team, was guest speaker.

Maguire, son of police lieutenant and Mrs. Francis Maguire, 269 Hawthorne Avenue, also has received a scholarship to the Hun School, a teammate of Maguire's, Joseph "Mickey" Chapuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Chapuk, 94 Linden Lane, has been granted a scholarship to Hun.

FRANKLIN OVERWHELMED BY PBS in Track. Visiting Princeton from the East, he did much better against Princeton High School than last year, was simply no match for the Little Tigers on the track. The home team captured first place in 13 of 14 events, winning 97-30.

The Blue and White swept the discus, shot and 440. Only one of the home jump which triumphed with a jump of 6.0 was it shut out. As a consequence, PBS increased its dual meet record to 4-1.

Bart Bennett continues to score at a record-breaking pace. He took the first spot in the low and high hurdles and the broad jump for the fourth time this season. He now has 73 points. His time of 19.6 in the low hurdles was the best clocking of the year.

New in the winner's circle for PBS is Glen Cohen, a junior, who captured the mile with a 4:54.3 clocking. Pete Michael, Princeton's most successful mile, shipped the crown to run the two-mile which he won in 10:21.3.

Mike Conant took the 880 and Vince Bocanuto won a double winner, scoring a victory in the 100 and 220 in times of 10.4 and 22.7. Franklin's lack of depth was evident in the 440 which has been a soft spot for the Little Tigers but which they swept Tuesday with George Field (53.7).

Have Moore and Jim Seale reclaimed 220 runner, finishing 1-2-3.

Other winners: Carl Deavacalcate in the discus (136-2) and shot (52-0) and Robert Way in the vault. Dan Findale unceremoniously took the javelin to win that event with a distance of 138-0, and that is really reaching the out-hip for a high school performer.

BUSINESS In Princeton

WE'LL WORK FOR YOU
Computer Service Here. A management service organization that can do everything from sending out medical bills to scheduling the construction of corrugated boxes has announced the availability of its new NCR 315 Computer and a staff of experts.

Management Information Systems, Inc., 759 Sate Road, was founded in August by Ellwood Kauffman and Herbert R. Kane. Mr. Kauffman was founder of Applied Data Research, Inc. and served as its president until he resigned to form MIS.

Mr. Kane has been in business in Princeton for the past decade and was president of Lahiere-Kane Motors, Inc. for five years.

MIS has applied the utility concept of computer usage to a wide range of customers on the eastern seaboard. By developing and retaining specialized systems that can serve more than one company, MIS is able to keep costs down for any single client using the service. Track maintenance reporting, inventory reporting, sales, payroll, personnel, the handling of accounts receivable and corrupted book scheduling are among the services offered by MIS.

The NCR Computer, valued at more than $300,000, accepts input in the form of punched cards or punched paper tape.

and can produce reports at the rate of 1000 lines per minute. The MIS system also includes two NCR Carr Random Access Memory (CRAM) units capable of processing information at the rate of 100,000 characters per second.

MIS chose the large NCR Computer because MIS and National Cash Register are both oriented toward commercial applications. National Cash Register has made all its established programs for industry, as well as for retail and wholesale operations, available to MIS.

In addition to Mr. Kauffman and Mr. Kane, MIS includes John C. Van Cleave, who joined the firm in January as Operations Manager, John C. Campbell III and Christopher J. Saver as the programmers.

SMALL ANIMAL RESCUE LEAGUE

This is the ONLY organization in the Princeton area which cares for stray dogs and cats and arranges for their adoption.

Picked-up animals are kept for 7 days to give owners a chance to claim them—and if they do turn up, they pay the boarding charge, which is otherwise home by the Borough or Township. After 7 days the League takes over an unclaimed animal and boards it until a home is found for it. In 1965, 173 lost animals were returned to their owners and 434 went to new homes.

This service to the community is supported SOLELY by contributions, which are tax-deductible. A greatly increased membership is necessary to ensure the continuance of the work. Won't you please enroll now as a member, sending your cheque, made out to Princeton Small Animal Rescue League, to
